Fifty and Beyond News

The Langruth Seniors held their monthly business meeting on August 8th at the Langruth Municipal Office with five members present. Harry Lazor greeted everyone and asked for the various reports. Teri Soos read the minutes from the last meeting. Emily Thompson gave the Treasurer's Report. She had deposited the cash she had on hand. The balance is $1989.40. There were no other bills to be paid. There was no Cheer Report.

Harry had spoken to various people about the Seniors Games and heard that a number of people from our neighboring communities won various prizes at the games. Plumas did well with their bowling. We should have all the results at our next meeting.

We discussed the Langruth Harvest Festival. We had talked about taking part as in previous years but we have since decided that we wouldn't have our usual rainbow auction table and would let the United Church have a similar table. We will be making up a hamper for our Christmas Party and selling tickets on it. That draw seemed to go over well last year.

There are a number of people that come to the Harvest Festival as vendors. There is always a nice variety of items for sale. Of course there are activities for the children to keep them occupied throughout the day. It is always an enjoyable day to take in the activities and visit with friends and neighbors.

There was a discussion regarding our monthly suppers for the next year. We will finalize the plans at our next meeting. Watch for more information.

Our next meeting was on September 4th. A report from that meeting will be included in the October issue of the Langruth Views.

The meeting was adjourned by Margaret Whitely. Teri Soos then served a lovely lunch which was enjoyed by all

Talk to you next month,
Teri Soos

Nature Notes

American Coot

This close relative of the gallinules and moorhens lives on open water and is often mistaken for a duck. It pumps its small head back and forth like a chicken when walking or swimming and usually travels and feeds in flocks. A common and widely distributed species over much of North America, the American Coot is easily distinguished by its overall slate-gray plumage, which is blacker on the head and neck, its white bill, and small reddish brown frontal shield. Juveniles are similar to adults but paler, particularly on the underparts, with a darker bill.

The American Coot feeds by immersing its head and neck in shallows with body and tail tipped up. It may also pick food off the surface. It dives 3 – 7.5 metres deep for fronds, leaves, seeds and roots of aquatic plants, which make up most of its diet. This bird also eats insects, amphibians, mollusks and small fish. It runs with wings flapping rapidly to gain flight from water. It is often aggressive towards other waterbirds, chasing them noisily from its vicinity.

During courtship, pairs display for each other on water. The male also chases the female across the surface of the water.

The American Coot's nest is made of dead stems, lined with finer material, floating and anchored to vegetation. It is built by both sexes.

Incubation is 21 - 25 days by both sexes. Precocial young abandon the nest shortly after hatching and dry off. They are tended by both sexes. First flight is at 49 – 56 days. There are one to two broods per year.

The American Coot is common to abundant. The population has decreased in the east in recent years.

What! A Portulaca is a Nutritious Treat?

Yes! The weed Portulaca oleracea that we don't like to see in our gardens can be eaten as a nutritious food instead of being thrown away. It has seven times the beta-carotene of carrots and six times more vitamin E than spinach. It has much higher levels of Omega 3 fatty acid than other greens. It has significant amounts of fiber, vitamin A, Vitamin C, B vitamins, iron, magnesium, manganese, potassium, calcium and copper. The stems and leaves are good to eat. Wash them thoroughly and cut them up. They can be tossed into a salad or soup, or added to an omelet or a sandwich. It could also be steamed for 4 -5 minutes and seasoned with salt and butter. Juice it or add it to a smoothie. Use your imagination and enjoy!

Finally it is a great way to get rid of a plantar wart. Make it into a paste, put it on a band-aid and cover the wart. Be sure to tape around the band-aid so the portulaca doesn't squeeze out.

Escape Room Returns to Langruth

Escape Rooms are adventure games in which a team must find clues and solve puzzles to complete a given mission. The goal is to solve the puzzles before the time limit expires.

ESCAPE ROOM

Don't miss the Escape Room at the Langruth Harvest Festival on September 28th. When you arrive, reserve a time slot for your team of 3 – 5 people. In the escape room your archaeological team will be on a quest of the ancient pyramids. As your group descends deeper and deeper into the tomb of Petely, one of your team members stops to take a picture. This simple act sets off a series of devices that trap you in the tomb. With your air running out, you must solve the puzzles to escape or forever be buried with Petely.

The Escape Room is suitable for children (8 years and older) and adults and will be available between 11:00 am and 4:00 pm. $5.00/each. Have fun!

Petting Zoo and Hay Rides at the Langruth Harvest Festival

News From Here, There and Anywhere

Reporter Teri Soos

Hello Again! Now that we are into harvest it has started raining. Seems like things are back to normal! It has been raining off and on for the last week or so, with some lightning and rumbles of thunder. We haven't had a great deal of rain but it sure has been welcome. I heard at church that Alonsa still didn't get much rain. We are happy for the rain but it has stalled those that were trying to harvest. I don't know if it has rained enough to make the fields muddy. The crops are short and need to be cut very short so we hope that mud won't complicate things any further. I've been told that the yields aren't too bad considering the hot and dry year. The seeds are somewhat smaller which is understandable.

Our lawns had completely browned off with the drought. Now that we have had a little rain it is surprising how quickly they've turned green - seems like they turned overnight. Unfortunately the late rains aren't helping those trying to find winter feed for their cattle. I heard on the radio that people are looking for anyone that has extra hay or even straw to sell. I've heard that there are options for feeding pellets or various grains – I'm not much of a farmer on these things. Hopefully you can find something to replace the hay and straw that you don't have.

Unfortunately you don't get much for the cattle when you sell but you certainly seem to have to pay top dollar if you were looking to buy cattle. It will be certainly be a balancing act this fall between finding feed and possibly selling off cattle. We can hope that the recent rains will be of some help for the fall pastures.

The gardens unfortunately didn't do very this year. Based on the number of items at the Fall Fair, gardens must have been very sparse. We didn't have a great showing this year for the vegetables. The baking and handicrafts were very nice. A number of communities aren't running their fairs anymore but Langruth and Amaranth have continued. The Langruth Fall Fair has been running for 65 years. We hope that it will continue and we will have better growing seasons to work with.

By the way I would like to thank whoever gave me the zucchinis. I don't know if I wasn't home or didn't hear my bell but I found three lovely zucchinis on my door step. I don't have a garden this year so they were a very nice surprise. They were just the right size for eating. Thank you again.

I hope that harvest has been going ok. Many people harvested earlier than usual because the crops ripened so quickly. Now that we have had a little rain harvest seems to be at a standstill. I hope the rest of your harvest goes well and you can finish up without too much trouble.

There wasn't a great deal of berries this year because of the dryness. The wild berries were rather small. Apparently the tame berries that were watered were very nice. It does take a lot of watering to make sure there is a good crop. Anyone selling at a farmers market would have been busy watering this summer. When I was in Portage I stopped at a road side stand and bought potatoes, corn and other vegetables. The potatoes were actually quite large and full grown. The corn that I bought was excellent. It had been freshly picked because the vendor had sold out in the morning. I hope that there will be more the next time I am in Portage.

As most of you know I grow grapes. This year being that it was so warm and dry they didn't do very well. Some grapes are starting to ripen now. I certainly won't have as many as I usual, but I hope to have enough to eat if nothing else.

To anyone who had birthdays or anniversaries we hope you had a happy day and that you have a good year ahead.

For anyone that is feeling under the weather we wish you all a speedy recovery. I know that this type of weather sometimes brings on the flu. According to some weather forecasts we will have a hard, cold winter with lots of snow. Other forecasts say we will have a long, dry fall. That it will be warmer than usual and will be a nice winter. We are going to hope that the second forecast is right! We hope that everyone has a good winter and can enjoy the winter rest.

I heard that Raymond O'Connor has moved over to Gladstone. Raymond writes our bird news in this newspaper. We wish him well in his new home. I know in the spring he was having problems with bears around his yard. He won't have to worry about that living in Gladstone.

I have heard of a number of deaths recently. I heard that Margorie Minton has passed away. Originally from Langruth, she was Tom and Alice Strong's daughter. She married Bill Minton from Amaranth where they lived most of their married life. She had been living in Portage. Many will also remember Donna Lee. She was Don Lee's wife. Don Lee is a minister and was a school bus driver in the Amaranth area. Donna had been living in Gladstone for the last while. I heard the Gypsy Hunking's father also passed away. Gypsy is one of my homecare workers. To all these families we send our deepest sympathies and condolences. We hope that memories of happier times will help through the coming days.

I have been playing Kinsmen Bingo on Saturday nights. Lately the jackpot hasn't gone so I have made sure I have cards to play. Of course some of the money raised from the bingo goes to the Kinsmen club and their projects. I haven't won anything yet. There seems to be a number of people from various communities playing based on the winners. It sure would be nice to win.

I'm sure you have all heard that our next Provincial Election will be on September 10th and the next Federal Election will be on October 21st. We hope that everyone will go out to vote. As you know, if you don't go out to vote you don't have any say in who will represent our area provincially or nationally.

That's all for now. To all the teachers and students returning to school, we hope that you have a great year.

I send you a high five until next month,
Teri Soos

Children's Hospital Therapeutic Clown Retires After 30 Years

Source: Mikaela MacKenzie, Winnipeg Free Press

Having been diagnosed with Cystic Fibrosis when only a few months old, Dallas Jonasson (Kory Jonasson's son and Lynne Jonasson's grandson) is no stranger to the Children's Hospital in Winnipeg.

A special person at the Children's Hospital has been David Langdon, the resident therapeutic clown. Through fun and laughter, David Langdon reminds the children that laughter is truly the best medicine. To Dallas's surprise this special clown had a connection to Langruth. He is the grandson of one of the town's founders; George W. Langdon. After Dallas mentioned where he was from, David Langdon told him all about his family and his connection to Langruth.

David Langdon has been making connections with children for 30 years. He took over the therapeutic clown in 1989. Established at the children's hospital in 1986, it was the first clown therapy program in the world. For three decades, his work has given hospitalized children the opportunity to regain hope through interactions with his clown personas. After 30 years behind the makeup, David Langdon is hanging up his red therapy nose.

Dallas was fortunate to have met David Langdon and have fun with his clown personas during his hospital stays. He will be missed.

10 Neat Things About Corn

Source: <http://localgardener.ca/newsletters/aug23-2019/mb-corn.html>

1. Corn is Grass

Maize, which is the farming name for corn, is a cereal grain. Like most cereal grains, it is from the poaceae family, the grass family.

2. Multiple Varieties

You don't want corn to cross pollinate because it can result in tough corn that isn't very tasty. If you plant varieties that flower at different times you can enjoy a few different kinds.

3. Corn Flowers?

Corn silk is the female flower of corn. The male flower is the tassel up top. Each thread of silk when pollinated grows into a kernel.

4. Corn Needs No Bees

Bees are crucial to agriculture, but not where corn is concerned. Corn pollen is spread by wind, and corn is self-fertile.

5. Save your Energy

Don't bother removing side shoots from our corn plants. It doesn't improve the plant and you may be rewarded with a second ear on some plants.

6. Smut

The white and black fungal gall known as smut is not poisonous. In fact it is a delicacy in Mexico where it is cultivated and fetches a higher price than the corn itself.

7. Feed The Corn That Feeds You

Just like the grass on our lawn, corn appreciates nitrogen. Side-dress your plants with it when they are eight to 12 inches tall.

8. Ready Whether You Are Or Not

Corn is usually ready to harvest about 20 days after the silk appears. If you harvest too early, the juice will be watery. If you harvest too late, the kernels will be tough and doughy.

9. Native Traditions

Corn accounted for up to 65% of the Iroquoian diet and involved the entire community: men cleared an area and women planted.

10. Rascally Racoons

These varmints like their corn just a little less creamy than humans do. Watch out because they'll probably start harvesting before you do.
