May 12th is Manitoba Day

Reprinted From: https://www.museumsmanitoba.com/ https://www.gov.mb.ca/chc/origin_name_manitoba.html

The Manitoba Act, which created the Province of Manitoba, was given Royal Assent on May 12, 1870. On May 12, 1966 Manitoba's official flag was dedicated and unfurled for the first time. In 1986, May 12 was designated as Manitoba Day in perpetuity, in recognition of the importance of this day in the history of the Province.

The name Manitoba originated in the languages of the Aboriginal people who lived on the Prairies and travelled the waters of Lake Manitoba.

These people, the Cree and Assiniboin First Nations, introduced European explorers, traders and settlers to the region and its waterways. They also passed on to the newcomers the ancient names and poetic legends associated with the places they inhabited. More than two centuries of contact and trade between the Europeans and First Nations produced a blending of their languages. From Aboriginal name and legend to official title of the province, the evolution of the name Manitoba mirrors the history of the region.

At the Lake Manitoba Narrows a strong wind can send waves washing against the limestone rocks of an offshore island. The unique sound from the waves is said to be the Manitou, or Great Spirit (in Ojibway, "Manito-bau"). The legend survives in the Province's name – Manitoba.

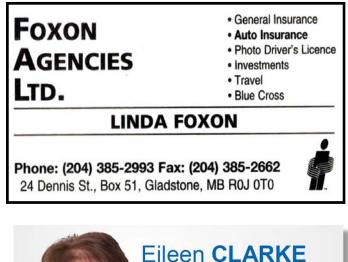

Thomas Spence, leader of the Canadian settlement near Portage la Prairie, was the first person to use the word Manitoba in reference to both the lake and surrounding territory. By 1858 the population of the Portage community had grown to the point where it needed a municipal organization of its own. In 1868, Spence and others at the settlement formed a provisional government and announced to the British Colonial Office that the district was to be known as the Republic of Manitobah. The government was not recognized, but the name endured.

During the Red River Resistance of 1869-70, Spence joined Louis Riel's Métis Council. In the spring of 1870, delegates from this council were sent to Ottawa to negotiate the transfer of Red River to the Government of Canada. The List of Rights they carried to the meeting stated that the new province would be called Assiniboia, a name given to the area by Lord Selkirk. But Riel had misgivings about the name. On April 19, 1870 he sent the following letter of instructions to his delegate, Father Noël-Joseph Ritchot:

The name of the country is already written in all hearts, that of Red River. Fancy delights in that of 'Manitoba', but the situation seems to demand that of 'North-West.' Friends of the old government are pleased with that of Assiniboia (but) it is not generally enough liked to be kept. Choose one of the two names 'Manitoba' or 'North-West.'

On May 2, 1870, Sir John A. Macdonald announced that a new province was to enter Confederation under The Manitoba Act. He said the province's name had been chosen for its pleasant sound and its associations with the original inhabitants of the area.

Both the Cree and Assiniboin terms, and the legends and events associated with their use, are preserved forever in the name Manitoba. A plaque commemorating its origin is located on the east side of the Lake Manitoba Narrows.

Nature Notes

Redstart

Birders enjoy watching this vivacious bird as it flits to catch insects or sits on a perch, partially spreading and drooping its wings and spreading its tail. Other warblers pump or flick their tails, but this bird fans its tail and holds it there for a second. The male's tail can be either orange and black or yellow and dusky olive-grey.

Juvenile males look like females but with an orange wash on the side.

Redstarts are tame and sing often. They respond to squeaking by birders. They live solitary or in pairs.

The Redstart sallies into air to catch insects, perching between hawking events like a small flycatcher. It gleans food from branches and foliage.

This bird eats insects, caterpillars, spiders, berries, fruit and seeds.

The nest is made of grasses, pieces of bark, rootlets and plant down. It is decorated with lichen, birch bark and spiders silk and it is lined with feathers. The nest is built by the female in the fork of a tree or a bush usually 3-6 metres above the ground.

Incubation is 11-12 days by the female. The altricial young are brooded by the female. They stay in the nest 9 days and are fed by both sexes. They have 1-2 broods per year.

The Redstart is common to fairly common in wet deciduous and mixed conifer-deciduous woodlands with under story, woodland edges, riparian woodlands and second growth.

It is widespread but declining in the Midwest and Great Lakes. This warbler passes through our area.

News from Here, There and Anywhere

Hello everyone. This is Michelle Teichroeb writing again this month. Our best laid plans to have a new voice recorder for Teri Soos by now fell through due to some procrastination on my part. We have one on order but it has not arrived yet. Teri and I always have a nice phone visit once a month to discuss the newspaper. She is doing well. This month Teri had some news for me to include in her regular column.

Naturally we discussed the weather and how dry it is right now. We both agreed that everyone would probably be happy with a good rain – a big rain. The trees still don't have any leaves here at Langruth or in Gladstone. In some ways it still feels like winter. Teri thought that we usually had leaves by now but neither of us has even noticed the trees budding out yet. My lawn is finally starting to green up here at Big Point. Being so close to the lake the grass and trees are usually about a week behind the grass and trees in Langruth but we don't see anything greening up very quickly in Langruth either.

Teri told me about a nice day trip that she went on a couple weeks ago with her sister-in-law Marg Soos and nieces Louise Emerson and Veronica Roth. They went to Amaranth to church and toured around as they made their way back to Gladstone. Joanne Kleemola had them for lunch and had a delicious meal of fish and chips. They also stopped in at the Hungarian Cemetery along the way.

Louise and Veronica have also been going through boxes of old pictures with Teri. Teri says they went through quite a bit but certainly not all. Each picture has a story to tell so it all takes time. Her pictures of family in Hungary must be quite a treasure.

Teri also told me about a few people that she knew had passed away recently. We send our deepest sympathy to the Jonasson family on the passing of Bill Jonasson on April 19th. Bill grew up in the Big Point area and finished his schooling in Langruth. He and his wife Dot lived and worked in Winnipeg. On April 30th Diana Emerson passed away at Third Crossing Manor in Gladstone. We send our sympathy to her husband Bob and the Emerson family. Bob and Diana lived and worked in the Gladstone area. Some from the area may remember Jim Takacs, a good friend of Ernie and Marsha Soos. He passed away at the end of March. He and Ernie immigrated to Canada together in 1957 and were good friends over the years. Jim and his wife Elizabeth liked to visit with Ernie and Marsha at their farm here at Langruth. Elizabeth was an amazing opera singer. To anyone else that has lost friends or family we send our deepest sympathies. We hope that your happy memories will help you through the coming days.

To anyone celebrating birthdays or anniversaries we hope that your day was special. Unfortunately we still have to hold off on any type of gathering to celebrate. Phone calls and online messages seem to be the norm these days.

There still isn't much of anything going on for community events. Don't forget about the Langruth UCW Plant Sale on May 15^{th} . It will be held outdoors to abide by current public health orders. There will be a good variety of tomato plants, other flowers and vegetables and house plants available. Drop by to say hello and pick up something new for your garden. Proceeds will go towards the Langruth UCW.

Did anyone get a chance to see the ice build-up along the lake this spring? At Big Point the ice piles seemed to go on for as far as the eye could see. They were quite high in places. Kim Hiebert took some great photos. It is quite something to see.

Feel free to let us know if you have some news or something of general interest to include in the newspaper.

Have a great month. Take care, Michelle Teichroeb

World Health Organization (https://www.who.int/), Province of Manitoba (https://www.gov.mb.ca)

Globally, the COVID-19 pandemic continues to intensify. As of April 26th, 2021, cases had increased for the ninth straight week, and deaths had increased for the sixth straight week. To put it in perspective, there were almost as many cases globally in one week as in the first five months of the pandemic.

The World Health Organization (WHO) is providing critical equipment and supplies, including thousands of oxygen concentrators, prefabricated mobile field hospitals and laboratory supplies. WHO has redeployed more than 2600 staff to support the response on the ground.

Never before has the value of vaccination been so apparent. Vaccines are one of the most powerful and transformative inventions in history. Thanks to vaccines, smallpox is now in the history books, polio has been pushed to the brink of eradication, and diseases like diphtheria, tetanus, and meningitis are now easily prevented. In the past 15 years, vaccines have been approved to prevent cervical cancer, malaria and Ebola.

And now, safe and effective COVID-19 vaccines have been developed in record time – bringing us closer to ending the pandemic.

But even as COVID-19 vaccines give us hope of light at the end of the tunnel, the pandemic has caused severe disruptions to immunization services around the world. That means children are now vulnerable to deadly, vaccine-preventable diseases such as measles, yellow fever and polio.

Together, we can make up lost ground in immunization, support the global recovery from COVID-19, and make sure no one misses out on the lifesaving power of vaccines.

On April 26th, 2021 the Manitoba Government introduced new Public Health Orders to help slow the spread of variants of concern to protect the health-care system and all Manitobans from the third wave of COVID-19 in Manitoba. In order to allow the accelerated vaccine efforts to catch up, Manitobans are asked to stay close to home, significantly limit close contacts and get vaccinated as soon as eligible.

The following public health order restrictions came into effect on April 28th for four weeks:

• no visitors allowed at private households either indoors or outdoors with exceptions for people who live alone;

• no indoor gatherings permitted and outdoor gatherings are limited to 10 people in public outdoor spaces only;

• faith-based gatherings are limited to maximum of 10 people, with indoor mask use required at all times;

• patio dining is restricted to groups of four people only with no household restrictions;

• food courts in shopping centres are closed;

• gyms and fitness centres continue to be limited to 25 per cent capacity;

• spectators at outdoor sports facilities are limited to one parent/caregiver spectator per youth participant;

• dance, theatre and music schools are limited 10 people on site with one parent/caregiver spectator per youth participant;

• personal service business are limited to 50% capacity, but appointments are required;

• day camps are permitted to have up to 10 children indoors and outdoors;

• retail stores are limited to 25% of capacity or up to 250 patrons, whichever is lower.

Full public health orders in Manitoba can be found online at www.manitoba.ca/COVID19.

Thank You!

THE LAKEVIEW FIRE DEPARTMENT & ROBERT WATERSTON would like to thank all the people who so generously contributed to donations for Robert following his house fire this winter. There were many donations of household and clothing items. A total of $8070.00 was also collected. Robert and the Lakeview Fire Department are extremely grateful for this wonderful support given to him. Thank you to the CFAN organization for helping with this by managing the donations at their office.

Thank You All!

Sketch of Early Langruth By G.W. Langdon

Reprinted From: A Tribute to Soldiers and Pioneers of the Langruth District, 1950

As it appeared that a public stopping place was the most needed building to get the proposed new town going the writer had Mr. Williams construct what was known as the Boarding House, but before this building was fully completed three enterprising young men of Big Point, Bjorn Bjarnarson, Freeman Helgason and A.S. Helgason (Sophie) from themselves into a partnership known as The Langruth Trading Company and constructed in short order a general store building, which proved to be a going concern from the start. It was on the site of the present modern store of this firm and which has continued under the able management of Mr. Bjarnarson except for an interval of three years when he and his brother Karl operated an implement business just South of the store and the store business had been taken over by Helgason Brothers, joined later by C. F. Lindal. The original store building which had been enlarged and improved from time to time was unfortunately destroyed by fire in 1936.

Mr. Williams and his able gang were kept busy during the next few years constructing buildings both in the village and country. He passed away in January, 1920, at his residence at the south of the village where the writer and family have since resided. Mr. Williams was for a few years Police Magistrate.

As to the Boarding House, it was operated by three or four different parties, the first being Wm. Lightfoot who came West with the Haneys. It was of course traded by the writer on farm lands and in the spring of 1913 was secured by WM. Grant, a hotel-man of Portage la Prairie and enlarged to give Langruth a hotel. The boarding house was the Southern part of the present Ridge Hotel back as far as the kitchen.

The next building was Robert Long's implement warehouse and a residence, or at least a stable which was used as a residence in the meantime, Mr. and Mrs. Long having moved in from the farm with their little nephew – adopted son of Charlie McLaughlin, who as C.W. McLaughlin was destined to become one of our most successful business men. He continued the expanding implement, auto and garage business after Mr. Long's death in 1919 and until his own untimely death in 1948. Two years before his death Mr. McLaughlin replaced the former buildings by a large modern garage and implement building but which was unfortunately destroyed by fire in January of the present year. In fact, Langruth had much more than its share of destructive fires.

Going back to 1910, Mrs. Williams having arrived from Ontario, she and Mrs. Long were our first women residents. I think that Mrs. Williams was a little the first. Mr. Williams next constructed a residence for himself across the street from Mr. Long's and which also was destroyed by fire a few years ago. A few smaller buildings were built later in the year and 1910 saw the new town off to a fair start.

In the spring of 1911 two brothers, also of Big Point, Finnbogi and Erlendur Erlendson (Fred and Ed) constructed our second general store and for a number of years carried on a very successful and expanding business. This building was on the site of the present modern store of the Johanson Brothers. Within three years Erlendson Brothers had also constructed the two fine residences opposite their store. The first baby born in Langruth was Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Erlendson, born in 1912 and a little later the first baby girl, Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Erlendson arrived.

That same spring Mr. Williams constructed a manse for the Lutheran congregation and the minister, Rev. B. Thorarinson, moved in from Big Point. Langruth got its first Post Office in 1911, with B. Bjarnarson as Postmaster. But the mail was not carried by train until July, 1914. Previous to that it was mail delivery by horse express from Westbourne to various Post Offices as far north as Kinosota. Outlying Post Offices closed one by one as trading centres and better facilities for travel developed, those closed within the range of Langruth being Hollywood, Wild Oak (Big Point), Addingham (N. Lakeland) and Following Mr. Bjarnarson, F. Marshland. Helgason was Postmaster for a time and then Robt. Long and C.W. McLaughlin, each for a number of years, and at present Mrs. McLaughlin is our Postmistress. ... To be Continued in June

Top Tips on Growing Peppers

Source: Jennifer Poindexter https://www.gardeningchannel.com/

1. Peppers Love the Sun

Peppers need full sun (six to eight hours of sunlight). Pick the sunniest location.

2. Plant at the Right Time

Peppers don't handle frost well. Wait until after the last frost to plant peppers outdoors.

3. Peppers Need Their Space

Plant peppers with a minimum of two feet between each plant.

4. Water, Mulch and Stake

Peppers should be watered using the deep watering method. Water for longer periods of time less often. Mulch to keep the weeds down and keep moisture in the soil. Stake pepper plants as they become bigger to protect the stems.

5. Avoid Stunted Plants

Remove blooms until the plants reach an ideal height. Then allow plants to begin producing.

6. Add Calcium

Avoid blossom end rot by adding powdered milk to the base of the plant when planting.

7. Be Patient with Your Plants

Peppers love heat. If peppers seem slow to produce wait patiently for the heat.

8. Add Magnesium

Place Epsom salt around the base of the pepper plant during planting to ensure they are not nutrient-deficient.

9. Don't Forget to Amend Your Soil

Amend your soil, prior to planting, to ensure that your peppers have everything they need during their initial growing phase.

10. Don't Skip Weeding

Weeds steal nutrients from your plants and supply a home to unwanted pests. Don't forget to remove the weeds.

11. Don't Pluck Your Peppers

Avoid damaging your plants by picking peppers with a pair of clean shears rather than pulling them from the plant.

12. Don't Forget to Fertilize

Peppers should be fertilized at planting and again when they begin to flower to provide a necessary boost.

13. Don't Ignore Pests and Diseases

Peppers have many enemies. Watch for potential threats to protect your pepper harvest.
