Common Snipe

Identified by its extremely long, straight bill and longitudinal stripes on its head, this bird typically can be found in freshwate typically can be found in freshwater marshes and swamps in the vicinity of lakes and rivers. It frequents open landscapes. The unusual 'drumming' sound of the Common Snipe in flight is produced by rushing air vibrating two outermost tail feathers.

The Common Snipe sits tight in wet boggy areas and blends into the background, flushing only when approached closely. When flushed it flies in a zigzag pattern emitting sudden, rasping skaipe vocalization. It feeds principally on insects, insect larvae, and earthworms taken from mud by probing with its long bill.

The nest is in a well-hidden location on the ground. The Common Snipe makes a shallow scrape in moist soil and then weaves a lining of coarse grasses to build a nest up to 7 inches across and 3 inches deep. It is a solitary nester.

Incubation is 18-20 days by the female. Young leave the nest within hours of hatching. The first flight is at 14 - 20 days. One brood is produced per year.

There was a significant decline in Common Snipe numbers in the US from 1980 to 1995. Common Snipe breed in northern US, Canada and Eurasia and winter as far south as northern South America and central Africa.

Lands have been managed to primarily to increase population for hunting. It is highly questionable whether the Common Snipe should retain its status as a game bird species.

Manitoba Wildlife Federation News

Reprinted From: https://mwf.mb.ca/archives/4713

In March of 2021 Manitoba Wildlife Federation (MWF) announced the start of a new Wildlife Management Area (WMA) Pilot Project. Working with the Province, MWF will be leading a WMA habitat enhancement pilot project on sections of the Langruth (west side of Lake Manitoba) and Broomhill (south west region of the province) WMA's. Land management strategies will be used to enhance these habitats for wildlife species.

For those unfamiliar with WMAs in the province, they are sections of crown land which have been designated "as wildlife management areas for the better management and conservation and enhancement of the wildlife resource of the province". These lands provide critical habitat requirements to many species throughout the province while simultaneously creating amazing public access to hunting and wildlife viewing opportunities. Over time however, without adaptive land management, these isolated landscapes begin to change. Areas that were once open grassland habitat for species such as the sharp-tail grouse slowly get overgrown by aspen and other woody encroachment.

This WMA pilot project aims to use adaptive land management strategies such as targeted rotational cattle grazing, brush cutting and controlled burns whenever safe to enhance these ecosystems. Success of this project would see enhanced productivity of wildlife and wildlife habitat and provide an increased opportunity for wildlife harvest. MWF is excited to keep our members updated we implement as this project. the In meantime, visit https://mwf.mb.ca/archives/4713 for an overview and video of the property!

News from Here, There and Anywhere

Hello everyone. This is Teri Soos writing this month. I am back to somewhat normal. Our new voice recorder arrived and I am able to dictate to Michelle again.

The weather has been pretty good. We have had a few little rains through the area. There are a few puddles here and there. There was actually a little snow on one of the cooler days. Today it is quite sunny and there are few clouds. We could definitely use more rain. The grass is starting to green up and I see a few dandelions popping up. They seem rather short though. I don't know if there will be any lady slippers this year. I noticed that the lawn was being mowed around the building here even though there wasn't much to mow yet. It is nice to have everything cleaned up as it was so dusty looking. A few people here like to go out front and sit in the sunshine and fresh air but it has been so windy lately they haven't been out much.

There aren't many fruit trees around here but I been told that there is one a little further north that has blooms on it. I imagine all the fruit trees around are in full bloom. I hope they produce fruit so people can enjoy some fresh fruit over the summer. I have been told that the trees and grapes in the yard where I lived in Langruth have all been trimmed back. Hopefully the grapes will come back so the new owners will have some grapes in the fall.

I hope there will be some berries this year. I'm not sure if we will be able to go and pick any. A lot of people like to go picking. It is something to pass the time while we aren't supposed to be seeing anyone.

It has been a good year for the farmers calving. It hasn't been too cold. We hope that everything has gone well and the cattle are getting ready to be sent to pasture. There isn't very much water around right now for the livestock and other animals. There are some people finding that their dugouts are very low this spring and have to find other ways to water their livestock. We hope that there will be enough grass for the summer and hay for next winter.

I imagine the grain farmers are also in need of some rain for the crops they have just seeded. I don't know if the seeds will germinate being this dry. We have had a lot of wind which isn't good for the crops either. I've seen quite a few dust devils around. People talk about the number of wind storms and dust devils in the Dirty Thirties. We certainly don't need that again. We are hoping for rain to get us through the summer season.

I heard there was a small tornado not far from Sandy Bay. I hope no one was hurt or had property damage. There haven't been many tornados in our area but when they come that close it is a little hard on the nerves. They can be quite devastating. There are lots of areas in the US that have quite a few tornados. For some reason they seem to strike in the night. There are many people that have lost their homes. They always seem to build again.

I've heard that a few people have put in their gardens. I don't know what they will get out of their gardens if it doesn't rain soon. I suppose if the gardens can be watered things will still turn out ok. I've heard that some people in the cities are now starting to garden a little more so they can have fresh vegetables at home. With the pandemic everyone is spending more time at home and I guess this is something to fill their time.

I missed a few months of writing this column because I was in the hospital. In fact I managed to find myself in quite a few different hospitals. They all are quite nice and the food is fairly good. A few weeks ago I managed to burn my foot. I have had people coming to change the bandaging ever few days. They have been very helpful. The doctors now want burns bandaged rather than being open to the air. Apparently in two or three weeks I should be able to go without any bandages. The burn wasn't as bad as I thought it was going to be. It actually didn't hurt at all.

Due to the current public health restrictions there are some people that aren't able to work right now. For instance, my niece Louise Emerson has not been able to work for the last few weeks because salons had to close. Hopefully they can re-open soon because we all need haircuts and would like to have our nails done. Louise told me that there aren't many places to shop if you do go to the city. We are also only supposed to have one family member shopping at a time right now.

Our premier is having a hard time getting the vaccine out to everyone because there are shortages of the vaccine in the province. hope that as many as possible are getting the vaccine because that is the only way that we are going to get rid of this virus that has us in its grip. There are some people that are choosing not to get the vaccine for their personal reasons. I have a friend in Saskatoon who has decided not to take the vaccine thinking that if God wants to take her he probably will soon anyway. She is 88 or 89 years old. My opinion is that she is not thinking of others. Some people don't believe they can spread the virus. Hopefully she will change her mind. I got my first vaccine shot back in March while I was in the hospital. I got my second shot here not that long ago. I feel good that I have had the vaccination and won't be spreading the virus to others that haven't had the vaccination.

People in India are developing a COVID vaccine that is a nasal vaccine. I think the intramuscular vaccine would still be better. There are so many people in India I'm sure it must be a challenge to get the vaccine out to everyone.

There isn't a great of things going on these days. There isn't much that can go on with all the public health restrictions. We are all feeling a little stuck in our homes. We can't even go out to a funeral. We hope that those that can go to our friends and neighbors funerals will say goodbye for the rest of us too.

There are some people that still traveled south during the winter. I hope that they are not spreading the virus in the areas they are travelling to and not bringing the virus back with them. We had a nice winter so it wasn't too bad for those that chose to stay home.

My sister in California says that there are still a terrible number of COVID cases in their area. She has been staying at home. If she needs anything she orders it from Amazon and it arrives in the next couple days.

There are a few people that have passed away recently. I heard that Pamela McBeth passed away in Portage on May 23rd after a brief illness with cancer. She was 70 years old. Pamela was Wilf Boivin's daughter. I also heard that Margaret Grantham passed away on May 20th. Margaret was from the Amaranth area and was Leanne Thompson's mother. She was a very outgoing lady that I'm sure many will remember. Deepest sympathy to Krystal Nicholls on the passing of her mother, Anne Nicholls, on May 16th. Krystal has lived in Langruth for a number of years. Lastly, Louise Groom (Johannson) passed away on April 28th at St. Boniface Hospital in Winnipeg. Louise was Rena Arksey's sister and grew up in the Langruth area. We send our sympathy to these families and anyone who has lost family or friends. We hope that happy memories help you through the coming days.

I hope that all the mothers enjoyed their Mother's Day. I've seen so many beautiful flowers on television lately. I hope you got some flowers for Mother's Day.

To anyone celebrating birthdays or anniversaries we hope that your day was special. We can't celebrate as we had hoped due to all the restrictions. We wish you all the best for the upcoming year. This is a year that won't be forgotten soon. I heard that Mildred Armstrong celebrated a birthday recently. She turned 93 on May 24th. Happy Birthday Mildred. A new way to celebrate a birthday is a Birthday Parade. Ralph Thompson will be celebrating his 90th birthday. On June 6th at 2:00 pm a Birthday Parade will travel by his house to wish him well.

Until we speak again, take care.

COVID-19 NOVEL CORONAVIRUS

Reprinted From: World Health Organization (https://www.who.int/), Province of Manitoba (https://www.gov.mb.ca)

Almost 18 months into the defining health crisis of our age, the world remains in a very dangerous situation. As of May 24th, more cases have been reported this year than in 2020. On current trends, the number of deaths will overtake last year's total within the next three weeks.

For three consecutive weeks we have seen a downturn in the number of cases and deaths being reported, but globally, we remain in a fragile situation. No country should assume it is out of the woods, no matter its vaccination rate.

So far, no variants have emerged that significantly undermine the efficacy of vaccines, diagnostics or therapeutics. There is no guarantee that will remain the case. This virus is changing constantly. Future changes could render our tools ineffective and drag us back to square one.

The pandemic is not over, and it will not be over until and unless transmission is controlled in every last country.

The ongoing vaccine crisis is a scandalous inequity that is perpetuating the pandemic. More than 75% of all vaccines have been administered in just 10 countries. A small group of countries that make and buy the majority of the world's vaccines control the fate of the rest of the world.

The number of doses administered globally so far would have been enough to cover all health workers and older people, if they had been distributed equitably. We could have been in a much better situation. In time, there will be enough supply for everyone, including those at lower risk. But right now, there is not enough supply. Countries that vaccinate children and other low-risk groups now do so at the expense of health workers and high-risk groups in other countries.

In Manitoba new, strengthened public health orders are in place until June 12th to encourage Manitobans to stay at home to reduce COVID-19 transmission rates and to help protect the healthcare system. We need the full participation of all Manitobans for these strict public health measures to work so we can bend our COVID curve back down and get back to doing some of the things we love and miss.

The new set of public health orders include:

- indoor public gatherings are not permitted and visitors are not permitted on private property;
- employers to allow employees to work from home as much as possible;
- outdoor gatherings with anyone from outside a household are not allowed and this applies to all recreation spaces including playgrounds, golf courses, parks and sports fields;
- retail businesses may only operate at 10 per cent capacity or 100 customers, whichever is fewer, and only one person per household will be allowed to enter a business;
- increased requirements for malls to manage capacity and access to eliminate gatherings and ensure compliance with shopping;
- many businesses and organizations will remain closed for in-person service, including gyms and fitness clubs, restaurants and bars, personal service businesses, museums, galleries and libraries.

The chief provincial public health officer will utilize health-hazard orders to close businesses, if necessary, where there are multiple cases and transmission is a risk.

For a full listing of the current health orders, visit https://manitoba.ca/covid19/prs/index.html.

Sketch of Early Langruth By G.W. Langdon

Reprinted From: A Tribute to Soldiers and Pioneers of the Langruth District, 1950

Ivor Bjornson and Sigurdur Finnbogason were pioneers of 1911 and R. F. Matthews, from Ontario, who had purchased a half-section of the original block for a time occupied the Boarding House. Mr. Matthews later carried on a very successful lumber business for a number of years.

In the latter part of 1911 John Hanneson and Magnus Johnson opened a barber shop and pool room which was taken over by the latter the following year and Mr. Hanneson with his brother Tryggvi later established a hardware business. This business proved to be a very successful one from the start and has continued to steadily expand. Tryggvi withdrew from the firm to enlist in the First World War. In 1947 the original building was replaced by a very substantial and modern one, a great credit to Mr. Hanneson and to Langruth, and now Mr. Hanneson has as his very able partners his two sons, George and Leonard.

Langruth school was constructed in the spring of 1912. Until then the nearest school was nearly four miles to the South-East; known as Poplar Leaf School, a cement building which still stands. The first Langruth children were driven to it, with Mr. Jos. Falconer as their teacher. R.F. Matthews was the first van driver. Langruth school opened for the fall term of 1912 and a Miss Williams, of Gladstone, was the first teacher. A petition had been circulated in 1910 for the formation of a consolidated district and the then Minister of Education, Hon. Mr. Coldwell, came to Langruth and addressed a meeting in the newly constructed Langruth Trading Company store in that connection, this being the first public meeting A consolidated district of held in Langruth. thirty-seven sections was formed the following year and the trustees decided on the construction of a substantial white brick building which served for years not only as a school but a community centre, being used for church services, social events and public meetings in general. The first trustees were: Thos. G. Moorhead, Robt. Long, Bodvar Johnson, Chas. Parsons and A.T. Williams.

In 1919 it was found necessary to divide the teaching room into two separate rooms and a few years later a separate building was constructed for a third room and later a fourth room was added. At present these rooms are over-crowded and it is necessary to use space in the Community Hall for a fifth class. A substantial new six-room school building is now contemplated, thus showing the growth of the population during the past few years. The present trustees are: Mrs. V. Bjarnarson (chairman), Mrs. G.W. Langdon, V.A. Johnson, H. Tomasson and Helgi Thompson.

The consolidated system has proven a boon to many a child, especially to those living at a distance, in providing not only safe and comfortable transportation but also regular attendance and larger classes. The additional necessary taxes have been nothing as compared with such advantages to the children.

Also in 1912 Edward Armstrong opened our first barber shop, I. Olafson had the first livery business, John Oliver the first blacksmith shop and J.H. Johnson the first 'fish-house'.

Langruth's train service started off with one regular train a week and without a station or agent. For a time the freight was simply unloaded at the crossing for the consignees to come and get it. Later a temporary station was brought in on a flat car and in 1916 the present substantial station was constructed. R. Hay was the first resident agent and later George Fitzsimmons, who has since been agent almost continuously. The roadbed for a few years was so rough that trains were obliged to travel at a crawling pace and at very irregular hours. But deep down in our hearts we all love the old 'flyer'. It always got us there somehow.
