Wild Turkey

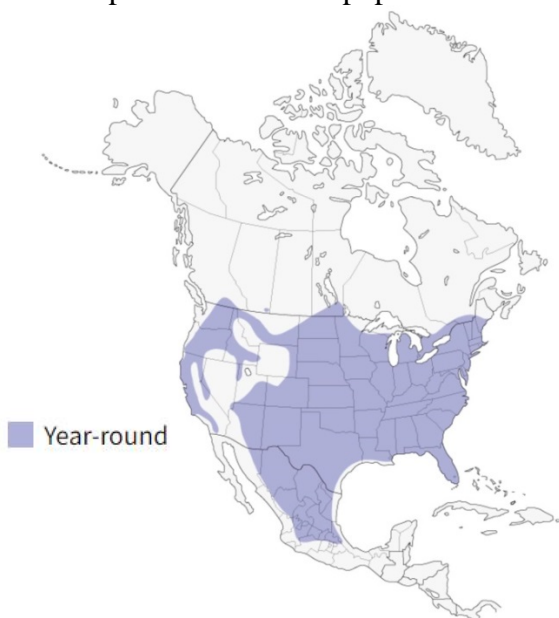

The largest game bird in North America, the Wild Turkey once was so widespread it was considered for the US national emblem. Male turkeys gobble year round, but in spring they are easily startled and will gobble at any abrupt noise. Gobbling may be heard up to 1.5 km away and is easily imitated. Its powerful muscular gizzard can grid the hardest of food. This turkey eats nuts, seeds, large insects, frogs, lizards, wild fruit, and grapes.

The nest of the wild turkey is built by the female on the ground concealed under a shrub or in the grass and lined with a few dead leaves and grass.

Incubation is 27-28 days by the female. The young take their first flight in about 14 days. They are tended by the female. The Wild Turkey has 1 brood per year.

Wild Turkeys are rare to fairly common. It is unlikely to find the wild birds in areas of human habitation even though they are widely domesticated. Trap and transfer programs have helped re-establish some of their population. Wildlife management programs and the increased number of forest blocks within agricultural areas have helped increase their population.

News from Here, There and Anywhere

Reporters: Michelle Teichroeb and Teri Soos

Hello Everyone! June is here and has brought extreme heat. It is hard to imagine we were disappointed at how long the temperatures were staying cool at the start of May. With high humidex warnings and +30°C temperatures we are hoping for cooler weather. The forecast is for hot weather through the month of June. This weather usually comes in July. I talked with Teri Soos and she still loves the warm weather. She hasn't had to turn on the air conditioner yet!

The fish flies arrived right on schedule during the first few days of June. As annoying as they are, fish flies are actually good news for the environment. Healthy fish fly populations usually mean good water quality. Fish flies spend two years under the water and must have clean water, good oxygen levels and not a lot of nutrient runoff. When you hear the hum from swarms of fish flies just think that it is a sign that Lake Manitoba must be reasonably healthy.

The farmers seem to have finished all their seeding. With a later than normal start they made fast work of the job. The crops are looking good but many areas are looking for some rain. There have been some spotty showers in the area but a nice, soaking rain would be beneficial.

The Langruth UCW held the annual plant and baking sale on May 20th. A good crowd of people stopped by to pick up some homemade baking or plants for their garden. The proceeds from the sale have been directed towards the United Church Mission and Service Fund.

There will be a Community Church Service in Einarson Park on June 25th. Everyone is welcome to come to worship and share in a potluck picnic afterwards. The Annual Vacation Bible School is also being planned in August. Watch for more information as there are always lots of fun activities and crafts for children.

Teri told me that Harold Jackson dropped in for a visit again. Harold used to have some old buildings in Portage that he turned into a type of museum that the seniors would visit. He doesn't have that anymore but Teri has good memories of their trips to see Harold in Portage.

News from Here, There con't

The WMCI Graduation Parade route usually passes by Third Crossing Manor so the seniors can enjoy the parade and help celebrate the graduates. WMCI Graduation festivities will be on Friday, June 23rd.

Langruth Elementary School will be celebrating year-end achievements on Monday, June 26th at 1:30 pm. All are welcome to attend. Best wishes to the Grade 8 students as they prepare for Grade 9 at WMCI in Gladstone.

We have heard of some friends and neighbors that have passed away recently. Firstly, the family of Joe Shelestynski, who passed away on March 8th, held a funeral service celebrating his life on June 3rd. We heard that Tim Elke from Amaranth passed away on May 5th at the age of 55 years. Many will remember Tim as he was a very handy fellow that worked in the Amaranth area. He was also one of the founding members of the Amaranth Fire Department. We also heard that Herman Hoffman of Amaranth passed away on May 29th. Herman was Lydia Johnson's brother. Deepest sympathy to the Hoffman and Johnson families. On June 1st David Single of Plumas passed away. David was the Reeve of the Rural Municipality of Westbourne for many years and was the Mayor of the Municipality of WestLake-Gladstone after the amalgamation of the two municipalities and the town of Gladstone. Deepest sympathy to the Single family at this difficult time. Condolences go out to anyone else that may have lost friends or family members recently. We hope that your happy memories help you through the coming days.

We hope that you enjoy the Memoirs of Duane Duff printed on Page 10 of this issue. I thought his detailed description of Langruth and area in 1951 was quite interesting. Many will have similar memories of our little town from different times. We hope they are all fond memories of your time in the Langruth area.

The next issue of the Langruth Views will be printed at the beginning of July. We will be celebrating the graduates next month so please consider submitting a picture and congratulations to your grads.

Take care,
Michelle Teichroeb

Fun Facts About Manitoba

Reprinted from: <https://journeyinggiordanos.com/facts-about-manitoba/>

1. Manitoba is one of the most sparsely populated provinces in Canada. Manitoba has a population density of just 2.2 people per square km. This makes it one of the lowest-populated provinces in Canada. For comparison, Ontario's population density is 14.1 people per square km.

2. Manitoba's provincial motto is Gloriosus et liber. It means Glorious and Free and was taken from the 8th line of the National Anthem, 'O Canada.'

3. Manitoba is home to many National and provincial parks. Manitoba is home to 92 provincial parks and 2 Canadian national parks. Riding Mountain National Park is located in the southern part of the province closest to Dauphin, whereas Wapusk National Park is located in the north, close to Churchill.

4. Manitoba is home to over 110,000 lakes. Manitoba has over 110,000 beautiful lakes, which cover roughly 16% of the province's surface area. Many of these lakes are perfect for canoeing, kayaking, fishing and swimming during the summertime.

5. Along with the many lakes, Manitoba also has a saltwater coastline. Manitoba has 650 kilometres of sub-arctic saltwater coastline along Hudson Bay.

6. The Port of Churchill is Canada's only Arctic deep-water port. It is also the shortest shipping route between North America and Asia.

7. Gimli, Manitoba is home to the largest Icelandic community outside of Iceland. The town of Gimli, on the west shores of Lake Winnipeg, also hosts an Icelandic Festival known as Islendingadagurinn every summer.

8. Chase the northern lights in Manitoba. Churchill is one of the top 3 places in the world to see the Northern Lights.

Explore Manitoba this summer and enjoy all the province has to offer. Watch for more Fun Facts in the July issue of the Langruth Views.

The Dirtier the Feet the Happier the Heart!

Grounding

Reprinted from:

<https://www.healthline.com/health/grounding>

Grounding, also called earthing, is a therapeutic technique that involves doing activities that "ground" or reconnect you to the earth. The practice is based on the electrical charges from the earth having positive effects on your body.

One of the easiest ways to ground yourself to the earth is to walk barefoot. Whether this is on grass, sand, or even mud, allowing your skin to touch the natural ground can provide you with grounding energy.

Although more research is needed, some studies report improvements for conditions such as:

- Chronic Fatigue
- Chronic Pain
- Anxiety and Depression
- Sleep Disorders
- Cardiovascular Disease
- Hypertension

Why not give it a try? It's summer, kick off your shoes and go outside barefoot. Just maybe, the dirtier the feet the happier the heart!

Memories of Teaching at Langruth School (1951 – 1952)

*Reprinted from: Memoirs of Duane Duff,
<http://www.mhs.mb.ca/docs/memoirs/duff/langruth.shtml>*

The community of Langruth was founded by George Langdon and Judson Ruth, of St. Thomas, Ontario. I grew up in a small community about twenty miles east of that city. The year that I was in Langruth, Mr. and Mrs. Langdon still lived there. In fact, Mrs. Langdon was a member of the school board.

The community is located a few miles west of Lake Manitoba and to the northwest of Portage la Prairie. The road to Langruth from the Yellowhead Highway, about sixteen miles south, is along a geological formation, and was known as the Ridge Road. The soil structure to the east is different from that to the west. The nearby lake is fairly shallow, with it being possible to wade out further than might be expected. There were no paved roads north of the Yellowhead Highway.

This was farming country. However, when I was there, it was also a fishing community, with much of the produce being exported to the US. There were growths of trees, not as common on the prairie farther to the south.

As elsewhere on the prairies, winters could be very cold and the summers very hot. The last week of April in the year that I was there, the daytime temperatures reached 90°F (32.2°C). Then during the third week of May, there was a wet snowfall.

There were two grocery stores. The Red and White was operated by two brothers, Bjarni and Joe Johanson. There were two or three farm implement dealerships. Near the middle of the community was the Ridge Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. McKinley operated the post office. The Royal Bank of Canada had a branch here. There were also a barbershop, a restaurant, and a shoe repair shop. The theatre was located in a quonset-type building just south of the school. As with most communities in Manitoba, there were a skating rink and a curling rink.

The office for the Municipality of Lakeview was located on the east side of the main street toward the south. There was also a local telephone central office nearby.

The Lutheran church, which conducted services in Icelandic, was located on the west side of the street, toward the south along the main street. The United Church of Canada was located on the same side of the street toward the north end.

The Canadian National Railway train, which carried the mail, arrived from Portage la Prairie twice a week and went as far north as Alonsa.

To obtain passenger service on the Canadian Pacific Railway, it was necessary to go to a station in Gladstone (west on the Yellowhead Highway) or to Portage la Prairie.

The Greyhound Bus Line offered daily morning service to Winnipeg and daily evening service from Winnipeg. Its northern terminus was either Amaranth or Alonsa. I believe that it carried mail to Langruth one day a week.

The school building was a grey brick building that was constructed about 1912, about the time of the founding of the community. On the other side of a partition was a high school classroom. Nearby was a white cottage-style building that housed elementary classes and another high school class. Surrounding these two buildings was a large playground. Our school was at the extreme north end of the community, while the home where I lived was at the extreme south end, less than one mile away. To the south of our buildings and on the west side of the street was a large hall where the primary grades were.

My classroom had windows on the west and south sides. Blackboards were on the north and east walls. In the southwest corner was a small room, about the size of a closet. In here were a few shelves that held our small collection of library books. There were outside toilets to the north of the buildings. In the basement were chemical toilets and a wood-burning furnace. I was on supervision duty every four weeks. In the winter, one of my jobs would be to throw a chunk of wood into the furnace. The heat reached the classroom through a register in the floor. Drinking water and clothes hooks were at the back of the room. A number of children liked to keep their heavy overshoes on their feet during the winter, even though it was not necessary to do so.

The students played softball when at school, while a number of them played hockey and/or curled in the winter when not at school. Some rural students were hauled to school in an enclosed horse-drawn sleigh in the winter.

On one occasion, Lionel Kuran, Margaret McKay, and I participated in a Sunday evening service at the United Church. Lionel conducted the service and gave the prayers. I read the sermon that was provided for me by one of the members of the church. It was the weekly sermon from the Family Herald. Margaret was the organist as usual. For part of the year, services were conducted by student ministers. They roomed at the home of Mrs. Duff (no relation to me) and obtained their meals at the Organ home, where I lived.
